Introduction

Oxford's collections (primary & secondary) for medieval history are outstanding by both national and international standards. The principal collections are housed in the Bodleian Library. This guide aims to give an overview of some of the Bodleian's most important and useful finding aids and collections.

Acknowledgement

Sincere thanks are due to Prof. Richard Sharpe (History Faculty), Dr. Martin Kauffmann (Bodleian Library / History Faculty) and Dr. Malcolm Vale (History Faculty) without whose contribution this guide would not have been possible to produce.

ii. Bibliographies

International Medieval Bibliography (IMB) & Bibliographie de Civilisation Médiévale

via [OxLIP+]

The IMB and BCM databases comprise records deriving from articles published in periodicals (journals) and in miscellany volumes (conference proceedings, collected essays, Festschriften and exhibition catalogues) published world-wide. All subjects relating to the Middle Ages are included, within the date range 300-1500 AD. Geographical areas covered are Europe, the Middle East and North Africa.

Bibliography of British and Irish History (BBIH) [continues RHS Bibliography]

via [OxLIP+]

Being the successor to the Royal Historical Society Bibliography online, BBHI is a comprehensive guide to historical writing about the history of Britain, Ireland, and relations with the empire and Commonwealth from 55BC to the present. The database consists of more than 470,000 records giving as comprehensive a guide as possible to books, articles in journals, and articles in books published since 1901, and to a considered selection of those published before 1901. The database consolidates a number of existing bibliographies (primarily series published by the Royal Historical Society and the Institute of Historical Research) together with some additional material. It is not intended to be a guide to the raw material of history - the manuscripts, printed books, buildings, artefacts and so on which constitute the historical record. However, published guides to these sources are included, as are modern editions of primary material and a selection of printed primary material published up to 1900.

Index Islamicus

via [OxLIP+]

Indexes literature and history on Islam, the Middle East and the Muslim world. Records included in the database cover almost 100 years of publications on the world of Islam.

Arts & Humanities Citation Index

via [OxLIP+]

Indexes content of major scholarly journals since 1975-. Particularly useful for finding book reviews.

Oxford Bibliographies Online: Medieval Studies

via [OxLIP+]

OBO is a library of disciplined-based subject modules. In each subject module, leading scholars have produced a literary guide to the most important and significant sources in an area of study they know best. The guides feature a selective list of bibliographic citations supported by direct recommendations about which sources to consult. The field of Medieval Studies explores European and Mediterranean civilization from the 4th to the 15th centuries. This period, which has a critical importance for the understanding of Western culture, can best be approached through a combination of several disciplines from history to English literature.

Index Religiosus: International Bibliography of Theology, Church History and Religious Studies

via [OxLIP+]

Index Religiosus is a reference bibliography for academic publications in Theology, Religious Studies and Church History. It covers publications written in various European languages (English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, etc.) and is the result of collaboration between the Catholic University of Louvain and the KU Leuven, which are both recognized internationally for their excellence in the field of Theology and Religious Studies.

JSTORvia [OxLIP+]

JSTOR is a trusted archive of important scholarly journals. Amongst the journals of interest for the study of US history are American Historical Review, Journal of African American History, Journal of American History, William and Mary Quarterly. The resource offers researchers the ability to retrieve high-resolution, scanned images of journal issues and pages as they were originally designed, printed, and illustrated. Thanks to its full-text searching functionality, JSTOR is also a resource to find articles and book reviews. However, being an archive of back issues, it does not provide access to current content.

Periodicals Archive Online & Periodicals Index Onlinevia [OxLIP+]

Previously known as PCI Full Text, this resource is a major online periodical archive that makes the backfiles of periodicals in the humanities and social sciences available electronically. Periodicals Index Online is an electronic index to millions of articles published in over 4,500 periodicals in the humanities and social sciences. Both resources are useful discovery tools for finding older published material.

2. Dissertations

The Bodleian holds nearly all Oxford postgraduate theses in the humanities where a deposit requirement is stipulated by the University: all D.Phil. (doctoral) theses, all B.D. theses, all B.Litt./M.Litt. theses since Michaelmas Term 1953, and most B.Phil./M.Phil. theses since Michaelmas Term 1977.

<http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/finding-resources/theses>

Theses on specific areas (e.g. Commonwealth & US) or subjects (e.g. science, law) are held in those libraries of the Bodleian Libraries which collect in those areas.

All new humanities theses since January 1994, and an increasing number of D.Phil. theses catalogued retrospectively, can be found on SOLO.

If you need a thesis which is not held in Oxford, please check out EThos, the British Library's service for downloading of theses from UK universities. From 2008 onwards, Oxford theses will be deposited in the Oxford University Research Archive (ORA) at http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/ora/oxford_etheses.

Proquest Dissertations & Theses Full-Text: The Humanities and Social Sciences Collection via [OxLIP+]

With more than 1.6 million entries, the Dissertation Abstracts database is the single, authoritative source for information about doctoral dissertations and master's theses. The database represents the work of authors from over 1,000 graduate schools and universities. We add some 47,000 new dissertations and 12,000 new theses to the database each year. The database includes bibliographic citations for materials ranging from the first U.S. dissertation, accepted in 1861, to those accepted as recently as last semester. Citations for dissertations published from 1980 forward also include 350-word abstracts written by the author. Citations for master's theses from 1988 forward include 150-word abstracts. The full text of more than one million of these titles is available in paper and microform formats.

Note that the IHR has only included theses that students or their representatives have given us express permission to include. This means that some theses listed in previous years are no longer listed.

a. Major Texts

Repertories and guides operate closer to the manuscript transmission than handbooks or lists of authors and they exist for large parts of the subject. Those listed below are selective by period, territory or nationality, subject, literary genre, or some combination of these. One has to get to know what exists in order to be able quickly to go to the most appropriate works of reference for any particular text.

Loeb Classical Library

via [OxLIP+]

The Digital Loeb Library is an interconnected, fully searchable, perpetually growing, virtual library of all that is important in Greek and Latin literature. Epic and lyric poetry; tragedy and comedy; history, travel, philosophy, and oratory; the great medical writers and mathematicians; those Church Fathers who made particular use of pagan culture—in short, our entire Greek and Latin Classical heritage is represented here with up-to-date texts and accurate English translations. More than 520 volumes of Latin, Greek, and English texts are available in a modern and elegant interface, allowing readers to browse, search, bookmark, annotate, and share content with ease.

Patrologia Latina, publ. by Jacques-Paul Migne. 217 vols (Paris 1844–55), with 4 vols. of index (Paris, 1864). LRR T.Text.Lat.1 + via [OxLIP+]

Universally known as PL, cited by volume and column, sometimes adding the side-letters that indicate position on the page. An heroic work, accomplished sometimes under the noses of the bailiffs by an eccentric French priest, the Abbé Migne [1800–1875]. The Patrologia is not an edition but a collection of reprints of the writings of the Latin fathers from Tertullian (c. 200) to Innocent III (1216). Only a few volumes present new editions, among them Tertullian, Cyprian, and Iohannes Scotus Eriugena. The texts reprinted by Migne vary greatly in quality; some are excellent, some appalling, and some useless as being based on a badly chosen representative of the text. The editions used by Migne range in date from the early 16th century to his own time.

Patrologia Graeca, publ. by Jacques-Paul Migne, 161 vols. + index. (Paris, 1857–66)

This does the same for the Greek fathers as PL (s.a.) does for Latin. Its coverage is much less complete, but there is always a facing Latin translation. These are sometimes ancient, sometimes medieval, and sometimes more or less modern.

★ Corpus Christianorum. Series Latina. 1-. (Turnhout, 1954-).
LRR T.Text.Lat.15 + via [OxLIP+ as Library of Latin Texts]

Another attempt to replace PL, the CCSL has progressed rapidly. Some of the volumes are well done, others were very hurriedly done and represent little or no advance on older editions. A better source, by and large, than PL. It was always the editorial policy to include PL column-references in the margins, so that older citations continue to be comprehensible, once you have found where to go in the new series. The Series Latina is intended to include all the texts covered by CPL, that is, down to the age of Bede. For later texts, see the Continuatio medievalis (s.b.). Index of authors is at <http://www.corpuschristianorum.org/home.html>.

★ Corpus Christianorum. Continuatio medievalis, 1- (Turnhout, 1971-).
LRR T.Text.Lat.16 + via [OxLIP+ as Library of Latin Texts]

A bit of a ragbag. The Continuatio medievalis began by publishing new editions of works from PL later than Bede, and volume numbers were assigned in advance. As time has passed, more and more additional volumes have been inserted or planned volumes have been split into two or three volumes, giving rise to volume numbers such as 40E. The same qualifications apply as to CCSL (s.a.) but generally more useful than PL. Index of authors is at <http://www.corpuschristianorum.org/home.html>.

Vetus Latina via [OxLIP+]
Bible Versions of the Latin Fathers. The comprehensive patristic records of the Vetus Latina Institut in Beuron.

The huge panoply of Latin biblical texts which were in existence and use from the second century AD/CE until the time when the Vulgate became predominant are known under the common rubric of the Vetus Latina, or the Old Latin, Bible. The term Vetus Latina refers to all those biblical texts translated into Latin which are not found in the Vulgate. The textual tradition of the Vetus Latina is complex and incomplete. Because there are a limited number of extant manuscripts that haphazardly cover the biblical text the basic sources are biblical citations or allusions that are found within the writings of the Latin Fathers or Greek patristic authors who were translated at an early date into Latin.

★ Acta Sanctorum quotquot toto orbe coluntur, [edited by Jean Bolland, 1596–1665, and his successors] (Antwerp, 1643–1770, Tongerlo 1794, Brussels 1845–1940 / repr. Brussels 1966–71).
DH R.2.3 + via [OxLIP+]

An attempt to print the uitae of all known saints, published by a small équipe of Belgian Jesuits, the Société des Bollandistes, founded in 1627. The Lives are arranged in the order of the calendar, and the first volumes, covering January, were published at Antwerp in 1643.

For a key to the Latin saints' Lives, use Bibliotheca hagiographica latina (above). Two subsidiary publications are issued by the Bollandists, Subsidia hagiographica (a series of texts, monographs, catalogues, and collected essays) and Analecta Bollandiana (a regular journal devoted to hagiography).

J. D. Mansi, Sacrorum conciliorum nova et amplissima collection. (Florence, 1759-98). (Repr. with revisions, Paris, 1901--27). [DH R.2.1.]

The standard collection of church councils, now very dated.

★ Monumenta Germaniae Historica [K.5.355-399]
Selections also available online via OxLIP+ or on web (<http://www.dmgh.de/>)

More an institution than a publication, it is usual not to italicize the title. The society was founded in 1819 as Gesellschaft für ältere deutsche Geschichtskunde; the first volumes to be published were edited at Hanover by G. H. Pertz, royal librarian there, who served an absentee English sovereign, King George IV.

Content: MGH Scriptores, 29 vols in folio (1826–92); Auctores antiquissimi, 15 vols (1877–1919); Scriptores rerum Merovingicarum, 7 vols (1884–1920); Scriptores rerum Germanicarum, 1- (1922-); Scriptores rerum Germanicarum in usum scholarum, 1- (1871-); Poetae Latini, 1- (1881-); &c. &c.

The numerous series of the MGH are generally kept in print, and many volumes are brought up to date with revisions or completely new editions. It remains the outstanding series for the publication of chronicles, laws, letters, and other historical sources, especially for the earlier middle ages. To keep track of its ramifications, get hold of the Gesamtverzeichnis (<http://www.mgh.de/publikationen/publikationen-allgemeines/>).

P. Jaffe, Regesta pontificum Romanorum ab condita ecclesia ad annum post Chr. n. MCXCVIII. Revised edition, directed by W. Wattenbach, edited by S. Loewenfeld, F. Kaltenbrunner, and P. Ewald, 2 vols (Leipzig, 1881-8). [DH R.2.11]

The revised edition was published in fascicules from 1881.

Papal Letters - Ut per litteras apostolicasvia [OxLIP+]

Provides online access to the complete collection of papal letters from the 13th and 14th centuries and represents an electronic version of the renowned:

Registres et lettres des Papes du XIII^e siècle (32 vols.; Rome, 1883-)
 Registres et lettres des Papes du XIV^e siècle (48 vols.; Rome, 1899-)

The online database provides striking information on the most varied aspects of medieval society: church institutions, the clergy, the papal states, politics, the legal system, taxation, government and finance, secular society, the religious life, intellectual and artistic life, the economy, wars, law and order, the environment and natural disasters, and daily life. Today the database contains approx. 12 million words and is devoted to the papacies of John XXII, Benedict XII and Urban V.

Medieval SourcesOnlinevia [OxLIP+]

A web-based learning resource containing hundreds of original medieval history documents compiled for the teaching and study of history. It will contain over three thousand pages of Medieval sources annotated and edited to a high standard. Foreign texts are translated.

Translated Texts for eHistorians.via [OxLIP+]

TTeH makes available sources translated from Greek, Latin, Syriac, Coptic, Arabic, Georgian and Armenian, published between 300 and 800 AD. This period, from late antiquity to the early middle ages saw the transformation of the classical world, the beginnings of Europe and of Islam, and the evolution of Byzantium. Each volume provides an expert scholarly translation, with an introduction setting texts and authors in context, and with notes on content, interpretation and debates.

Sample titles:

- Ambrose of Milan: Political Letters and Speeches
- The Acts of the Council of Constantinople of 553 with related texts on the Three Chapters Controversy
- The Formularies of Angers and Marculf: Two Merovingian Legal Handbooks
- Bede: The Reckoning of Time
- Hilary of Poitiers Conflicts of Conscience and Law in the Fourth-century Church
- The Lives of the Eighth-Century Popes (Liber Pontificalis)
- Conquerors and Chroniclers of Early Medieval Spain
- Gregory of Tours: Life of the Fathers

Medieval Travel Writingvia [OxLIP+]

"This collection presents manuscripts of some of the most important works of European travel writing from the later medieval period. The chief focus is on journeys to central Asia and the Far East, including accounts of travel to Mongolia, Persia, India, China and South-East Asia. The collection also includes a number of important accounts of travels to or through the Holy Land although in this it makes no claims to full or even broad coverage: a separate collection, covering crusading and pilgrimage narratives, would be required for that. It features a number of medieval maps such as the famous 'Beatus' and 'Psalter' maps, individual manuscript illuminations, and some modern translations of key travel texts. "

Internet medieval sourcebook

<http://www.fordham.edu/halsall/sbook2.html>

A website of a collection of medieval texts. Content scope is broad, covering a wide range of medieval studies. The majority of the sources are organized into one of three major categories: selected sources; full-text sources; and saints' lives. Additional categories include selected secondary resources, medieval legal history, and maps and images. The selected sources section offers an index to facilitate finding texts for particular periods or topics, and deals with material dating from the end of the classical world through to the reformation and renaissance. Topics listed include: economic life; the crusades; church history; intellectual life; Jewish life; and sex and gender. The full-text resources are arranged by document type, including: church councils; historiographical works; literary texts; spiritual writings; and legal documents. The saints' lives are presented in broadly chronological order, beginning with the apostolic era and going through to the post-medieval period. Saints of Byzantine, Western European, and Celtic origin are included.

b. Handlists

Books in this category are much shorter on prose and aim primarily to refer the user to printed editions of texts.

Tusculum-Lexikon griechischer und lateinischer Autoren des Altertums und Mittelalters, edited by W. Buchwald, A. Hohlweg, and O. Prinz (Munich, 1948, 1982).

French edition: Dictionnaire des auteurs grecs et latins de l'Antiquité au moyen âge, translated and updated by J. D. Berger & J. Billen (Turnhout, 1991).

Concise bio-bibliographical listing for about 2000 selected authors. Quick and easy to use for the authors covered.

Eligius Dekkers [1915–1998], Clavis patrum latinorum (Steenbrugge 1951, 1961, Turnhout, 1953)

A key that identifies by number all the extant works of the Latin fathers from Tertullian to Bede as well as many anonymous works falling within the same period. Its arrangement is partly geographical, partly by subject, so it is necessary to consult it via the indexes, especially the 'Index nominum et operum' (pp. 527–47). The treatment of pseudonymous works is good but not complete. The main deficiency of CPL is that it does not provide incipits in the entries on individual texts; there is, however, a partial index by incipit.

Hermann Josef Frede [1922–1998], Kirchenschriftsteller: Verzeichnis und Sigel, Vetus Latina 1/1 (Freiburg 1913, 1954).

Supplemented by Roger Gryson, Aktualisierungsheft, Vetus Latina 1/1C (Freiburg, 1999).

Originally published as Bonifatius Fischer, Verzeichnis der Sigel für Kirchenschriftsteller, Vetus Latina 1/1 (Freiburg, 1949, 1963), a key to patristic references (before ad 800) in the apparatus to the Vetus Latina, it anticipated CPL (s.a.). The latest edition is very comprehensive and up to date on editions, but the whole is less informative than CPL itself, though it is more thorough at the itemization of letters and sermons.

Maurits Geerard [1919–1999], Clavis patrum graecorum. 5 vols. (Turnhout, 1974–87); vol. 6 Supplementum (Turnhout, 1998).

Similar to CPL (s.a.), though much harder to use. Each author entry is arranged by subject and alphabetically by the incipit of the Greek text. Scholarship dealing with Greek texts is much less advanced than it is with the Latin fathers, so that CPG is a pioneer effort. Translations into Latin (or other ancient languages) are subordinated to the Greek text, except in circumstances where the Greek text does not survive, and no attention is paid to the Latin tradition. No attempt is made to treat Latin works falsely claiming to be translations from the Greek fathers.

CALMA. Compendium auctorum latinorum medii aevi, ed. Michael Lapidge, Gian Carlo Garfagnini, Claudio Leonardi, with Lidia Lanza, Rosalind Love, and Simona Polidori (Florence, 2000–).

Vast in scope, and the uneven work of dozens of contributors, this is likely to become the first port of call for information on an author or his works.

Corpus of British Medieval Library Catalogues, List of Identifications, compiled by Richard Sharpe. (<http://www.history.ox.ac.uk/faculty/staff/profile/sharpe.html>)

Authors and works identified in medieval library catalogues and cognate documents from Great Britain. It serves as a cumulative index to documents ranging from tenth century to mid sixteenth century; the works documented extend from Homer to the middle of the sixteenth century.

Richard Sharpe, A Handlist of the Latin Writers of Great Britain and Ireland before 1540, Journal of Medieval Latin, Publications 1 (Turnhout, 1997); repr. with addenda, pp. 913–44 (Turnhout, 2002).

The latest, though not the last, word on 2200 authors. Addenda available from the compiler's website; he can also supply a chronological arrangement of the authors' names and select lists, for example, of members of a particular religious order. The introduction discusses a range of relevant issues for medieval bibliography.

Three works that offer extensive listings of authors but without any attempt to digest or organize the information are:

IRHT Répertoire bio-bibliographique des auteurs latins, patristiques et médiévaux, 492 fiches (Paris 1987).

No more than a collection of records. Useful for writers so obscure that nothing else has provided information.

Clavis scriptorum graecorum et latinorum. Répertoire des auteurs grecs et latins, ed. R. LaRue, G. Vincent, and B. St.-Onge, 4 vols. (Québec, 1985).

This describes itself as 'a normative and computerized list of Greek and Latin authors for all periods, excluding Modern Greek'. It comprises 21,000 entries based on the excerpting of a limited range of reference-books (pp. xxvii–xxx), mostly concerned with Classical antiquity. It serves as a sort of union index to classical dictionaries.

Bayerische Staatsbibliothek, Personennamen des Mittelalters : PMA : Ansetzungs- und Verweisungsformen gemäss den RAK, ed. C. Fabian, Regeln für die alphabetische Katalogisierung 6 (Wiesbaden 1989); Personennamen des Mittelalters : Namensformen für 13000 Personen gemäss den Regeln für die alphabetische Katalogisierung. / Nomina scriptorum medii aevi, ed. C. Fabian, 2. erweiterte Ausgabe (Munich, 2000).

A self-styled authority file for authors' names, based on the excerpting of fifteen published reference books; its authority lies not in its use of evidence, for there is none, nor in reason, for no onomastic or linguistic principles are stated as to how a form was selected. Useful, however, because it allows a convenient synoptic view of how an author's name has been treated in modern reference works, and its coverage is wide. These are the forms of names used in the catalogues of manuscripts produced under the auspices of the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft.

c. Repertories and Guides

Marie-Hélène Jullien and Françoise Perelman, Clavis scriptorum latinorum medii aevi. Auctores Galliae 735–987, 1– (Turnhout 1994–).

Only the first two volumes for the first period for one region have so far appeared, and few expect to see a completed Clavis for all of medieval Europe. The first volume covers Auctores Galliae 735–987, dealing with authors from A to E; the second deals only with one author, Alcuin, omitted from his alphabetical place in vol. 1. The work is systematic and thorough.

Jan Machielsen, Clavis patristica pseudepigraphorum medii aevi, 1– (Turnhout, 1990–).

Planned in five volumes. The first one published deals with sermons falsely ascribed to the fathers; it is in two parts, A and B–Z, reflecting the bulk of pseudo-Augustinian material. The index of incipits provides a convenient access. Otherwise it is not always clear what the arrangement is, though it generally follows the order of the old published texts. The Augustine article is particularly complex, because sermons attributed to him have been published in several series. Always turn to the conspectus of sources at the beginning of the article. CPPM numbers will almost always lead to a definite recognition of which sermon is meant, if not to an identification of what it really is. The second volume, also in two parts, covers Theologica, Exegetica, Ascetica, Monastica. As the project proceeds, other classes of literature will be covered.

Bibliotheca hagiographica latina, [compiled by Albert Poncelet [1861–1912] and others] (Brussels 1898–1901); supplemented by Henryk Fros [1922–1998], Bibliotheca hagiographica latina. Nouum supplementum (Brussels 1986).

For Latin saints' Lives in print BHL will almost always provide a clear identification with reference to all printed editions. It is also useful for showing how many Lives existed for any individual saint, though it does not help to differentiate between a widely-known text and a peculiar text. The 1986 supplement suffers particularly from attempting to list variant uitae reported in manuscript catalogues without establishing their textual relationship to the main tradition. The compilers tended to eschew comments on date or value, but the arrangement of each saint's entry is intended to reflect the chronological development of the dossier.

There are similar works for saints' Lives in Greek (Bibliotheca hagiographica graeca) and languages such as Coptic and Syriac (Bibliotheca hagiographica orientalis).

BHL-MS

<http://bhlms.fltr.ucl.ac.be/>

An unusually reliable resource available free via the internet, this is a database incorporating the fruits of several generations of Bollandist cataloguing of manuscripts that contain Latin saints' Lives. From a saint's name, one can ascertain what texts have been catalogued, identified by their numbers in BHL; these numbers can be used as a search term to assemble a list of manuscripts known to the Bollandists, arranged by century or by present location.

Friedrich Stegmüller [1902–1981], Repertorium biblicum medii aevi, 7 vols (Madrid 1950–61); completed with the help of Klaus Reinhardt, 4 vols. (Madrid 1976–80).

Stegmüller begins by listing biblical, apocryphal and quasi-biblical texts (vol. 1); then biblical commentaries by identifiable authors (vols. 2–5); and anonymous biblical commentaries (vols. 6–7). There are supplements (vols. 8–9) and several indexes (vols. 10–11). For each item, Stegmüller provides an incipit, a brief account of its coverage, a list of manuscripts and of early printed editions. (This last can be very valuable, since he was better able to tell what texts such early editions contain than were those who have catalogued the printed books.) The drawbacks with Stegmüller's work stem from its dependence on secondary literature dating back a long way for some of its information, especially references to manuscripts.

Where the same work was transmitted as the work of more than one author, Stegmüller usually identifies a preferred author and cross-refers to this entry.

Friedrich Stegmüller [1902–1981], Repertorium commentariorum in Sententias Petri Lombardi, 2 vols. (Würzburg 1947); supplement by Victorin Doucet [1899–] (Quaracchi, 1954).

Similar in approach to his Repertorium biblicum, and equally pioneering. This provides a very accessible guide to the full range of Sentence-commentaries, and its reference numbers provide a concise identification for any such text. There is a detailed index of incipits in the second volume.

Steven J. Livesey, COMMBASE. An Electronic Database of Medieval Commentators on Aristotle and Peter Lombard's Sentences (1988–).

<http://www.ou.edu/class/med-sci/Commbase.htm>

This is a repertory of biographical and bibliographical data concerning 1600 Latin commentators on any part of the works of Aristotle or on the Sentences of Peter Lombard. The database continues to grow; an up-to-date copy may be downloaded gratis from the author's website.

Palémon Glorieux [1892–1979], Répertoire des maîtres en théologie de Paris au XIIIe siècle (Paris, 1933–4).

More useful than one might at first think, because such a high proportion of thirteenth-century men of learning passed through the university of Paris. For each author there is a list (in attempted chronological order) of his writings with reference to printed editions. For reference purposes each author has a number and each work a letter.

Palémon Glorieux [1892–1979], La Faculté des Arts et ses maîtres à Paris au XIIIe siècle (Paris, 1971).

Conceived on the same plan as his work on Masters in Theology but less fully achieved. Some of the lists of an author's writings (for example, Robert Kilwardby's) are derivative, uncritical and unverified. This book will be superseded in due course by Weijers (next).

Thomas Kaeppli [1900–1984], Scriptores Ordinis Praedicatorum medii aevi, 4 vols. (Rome, 1970–93).

Reasonably up to date in coverage, thorough, well laid out, and very easy to use. Kaeppli lists Dominican authors and their works, in most cases providing full information on incipits, manuscripts, and printed editions, so that this can be regarded as a true repertory. It is conveniently cited by reference number. Unfortunately, where Kaeppli had nothing to add to an earlier listing, he sometimes simply refers back. For some authors, such as Guillelmus Peraldus, Kaeppli is very thorough. Kaeppli's repertory excluded Thomas Aquinas, for whom there is still no manuscript-based listing.

Adolar Zumkeller, Manuskripte von Werken der Autoren des Augustiner-Eremitenordens in mitteleuropäischen Bibliotheken (Würzburg, 1966).

More than a list of manuscripts and effectively a repertory by author and title, though the census of manuscripts is limited to one area of Europe.

Johannes Baptist Schneyer [1908–1979], Repertorium der lateinischen Sermones des Mittelalters für die Zeit von 1150–1350, 11 vols. (Munich, 1969–90).

Lists the sermons of authors, known and unknown, for the period covered. The period is frustratingly limited, especially if you have a reference to some medieval preacher whose date you do not already know. The survey is based on exemplary manuscripts. It is valuable as providing a guide to the extent of an author's homiletic works and numbering individual sermons, though it rarely leads to a simple and distinctive means of citing a particular sermon. There is an index arranged by the texts of the lectionary, which allows one to see what sermons survive that were preached on particular texts or occasions.

J. B. Schneyer, Wegweiser zu lateinischen Predigtenreihen des Mittelalters (Munich, 1965)

Appeared ahead of the repertory. This provides lists of sermons grouped according to their biblical thema (alphabetically arranged).

Charles H. Lohr, Medieval Latin Aristotle Commentaries, published as a series of articles in Traditio 23 (1967) 313–413 [A–F], 24 (1968) 149–245 [G–I], 26 (1970) 135–216 [Jacobus–Johannes Juff], 27 (1971) 251–351 [Johannes de Kanthi–M], 28 (1972) 281–392 [N–Richardus], 29 (1973) 93–197 [Robertus–W], 30 (1974) 119–44 [supplement]; Latin Aristotle Commentaries 2 Renaissance Authors; 3 Index initiorum – Index finium (Florence, 1988–95).

A clear and informative repertory, with bio-bibliographical orientation, detailed incipits and concise lists of manuscripts. For works attested only through the bibliographical tradition, Lohr includes an outline reference.

Repertorium commentariorum medii aevi in Aristotelem latinorum.

Several volumes have appeared of a series under the title Repertorium commentariorum medii aevi in Aristotelem latinorum, each covering manuscripts held in particular libraries or in a particular place, the Jagiellonian in Cracow (ed. M. Markowski, Wrocław 1974), Prague (ed. J. B. Korolec, Wrocław 1977), Belgium (ed. A. Pattin, Leuven 1978), Amsterdam (ed. L. M. de Rijk & O. Weijers, Amsterdam 1981), Paris (ed. W. Seńko, Warsaw 1982), Vienna (ed. M. Markowski, Wrocław 1985), the Amplonian in Erfurt (ed. M. Markowski, Wrocław 1987). Collections on specific works include Aristotle's Oeconomica (ed. A. Somczyska, Medievalia philosophica Polonorum 28 (1987), 167–200) and Porphyry's Isagoge (M. Markowski, 'Repertorium commentariorum medii aevi latinorum In Isagogen Porphyrii quae in bibliothecis Cracoviae, Erfordiae, Graecii, Lipsiae, Mellici, Monachii, Poznaniae, Praegae, Salisburgi, Varsaviae, Vaticanani, Viennae, Wimariae, Wratislaviae asservantur. Einleitung', Studia mediewistyczne 29 (1992), 75–154).

Stephan Georg Kuttner [1907–1996], Repertorium der Kanonistik (1140–1234), Studi e testi 71 (Vatican City, 1937).

A survey of writings in canon law from Gratian until the publication of Gregory IX's Decretales. Informative for what it covers but limited in scope.

Johann Friedrich von Schulte [1827–1914], Die Geschichte der Quellen und Literatur des canonischen Rechts von Gratian bis auf die Gegenwart, 3 vols. (Stuttgart, 1875–80 repr. Graz, 1956).

I find this a very helpful survey of the writings of canon lawyers, though it should be categorized more as a handbook than a repertory. It is clearly arranged, with separate chapters for different authors and headings for their different works. Schulte almost always cites both manuscripts and early printed editions (and a very high proportion of medieval canon law has not been printed since 1520). Schulte's work is now somewhat dated, but the more recent reference books do not supersede it in fulness. For the early period, Kuttner is often more informative, and for quick reference the Dictionnaire de droit canonique (Paris 1935–65) is a starting-point.

Kenneth Pennington, Medieval Canonists. A biobibliographical listing.

<http://faculty.cua.edu/pennington/biobibl.htm>

Geoffrey L. Bursill-Hall [1920–1998], A Census of Medieval Latin Grammatical Manuscripts (Stuttgart, 1981). [SpColl RR R.5.553a]

A concise catalogue of grammatical texts in their manuscript context, with numbering of manuscript-references by library, shelf-mark and item (so 1.1.1 is Aberystwyth, NLW, MS 423, fols. 2--11). The survey covers 318 libraries, including some without published catalogues. Incipits are quoted and indexed (pp. 295–359), but tituli are not cited.

John H. Baker, A Catalogue of English Legal Manuscripts in Cambridge University Library (Woodbridge, 1996). [SpColl RR R.Cat. 115a]

A very well-informed catalogue, providing guidance to the whole field of English medieval legal manuscripts.

Paul Oskar Kristeller [1905–1999], Catalogus translationum et commentariorum, 1– (Washington, DC, 1960–).

Useful essays on the transmission of works in Latin translation or of Latin works with an antique, medieval or renaissance tradition of commentary. The series has not progressed very far, so it is a stroke of luck to find that CTC has got there ahead of you. The latest volume contains a cumulative index to what goes before: necessary, because there is no order in what is treated. Volume 8, ed. V. Brown & others, is advertised for publication in 2003.

d. Incipitaria

When searching for an incipit, one should remember that well-made repertories and guides are likely to include an index of incipits, which will be more likely to lead to an identification than a collection of undigested incipits. It is also the case that many catalogues of manuscripts contain an index of incipits. The incipit collection on slips at the Institut d'histoire et de recherche des textes has made use of a great variety of sources; its 400,000 items are now searchable through In Principio, which seems likely to supersede all other incipitaria as far as recognizing a text from its incipit is concerned; identifying the text still demands work with the incipit indexes to repertories and guides.

In Principio. Incipit index of Latin texts, 9th release (2001). via [OxLIP+]

A large collection of incipits recorded mainly from manuscript catalogues with some from bibliographical repertories and some from the texts themselves, searchable in multiple ways and enormously useful, though not to be relied on for identifications.

A register of written sources used by authors in Anglo-Saxon England, this resource is intended to identify all written sources which were incorporated, quoted, translated or adapted anywhere in English or Latin texts which were written in Anglo-Saxon England (i.e. England to 1066), or by Anglo-Saxons in other countries. The database shows which texts were known in Anglo-Saxon England, how well specific texts and authors were known, and in what different ways they were used. It also provides the basis for studies on the intellectual interests of Anglo-Saxon authors, and what contributions the Anglo-Saxons made to the history of ideas.

A collection of documents relating to the history of individual monasteries, much of it the work of Dodsworth rather than Dugdale ('the grand plagiarist'). The nineteenth-century edition augmented the work without correcting any of the textual errors of the seventeenth century, or even updating references to manuscripts which had changed ownership during the previous 150 years. The usual edition to cite is that published between 1817 and 1830, which was reprinted in facsimile in 1970. The reprint of 1846 differs in pagination in places.

c. Government

- Domesday Book* CD-ROM via [OxLIP+]

Domesday Book, one of England's oldest and most famous public record, describes the condition of England south of the river Tees in 1066 and 1086. Ordered to investigate 'how the country was occupied, and with what sort of people ... how much each had ... and how much it was worth', the Conqueror's commissioners conducted their survey so thoroughly that 'not one ox, nor one cow,' was left unrecorded.

99 per cent of the 15,000 places named in Domesday, it provides the first recorded description of their human and natural resources and the history of most English villages and the continuous history of the English countryside, from the landowning classes to the peasantry. On the economy and taxation, military service, administrative structures, government, legal customs and practice, place and personal names and many more miscellaneous topics, Domesday Book is the primary source for several centuries of English history.

Parliament Rolls of Medieval England, 1275-1504 (PROME). 16 vols.

URR K.7.85 + [OxLIP+]

The rolls of parliament were the official records of the meetings of the English parliament from the reign of Edward I (1272 – 1307) until the reign of Henry VII (1485 – 1509), after which they were superseded by the journals of the lords and, somewhat later, of the commons. The rolls, which amount in total to over four million words, were first edited in the eighteenth century and published in 1783 in six folio volumes entitled Rotuli Parliamentorum (RP) under the general editorship of the Reverend John Strachey. This new edition reproduces the rolls edited in RP in their entirety, plus those subsequently published by Cole, Maitland, and Richardson and Sayles as well as a substantial amount of material never previously published, together with a full translation of all the texts from the three languages used by the medieval clerks (Latin, Anglo-Norman and Middle English). It also includes an introduction to every parliament known to have been held by an English king (or in his name) between 1275 and 1504, whether or not the roll for that parliament survives.

Calendar of Close Rolls (1227-1509)

[URR K.5.160 + <http://www.british-history.ac.uk/catalogue.aspx?type=3>]

The Close Rolls, dating from 1227, contain a summary of the closed, sealed up, or more personal letters sent out in the same way, much of the information being of like character with that found in the Patent Rolls, but with the addition of a good deal that might be described as family history. Part of BHO.

Calendar of the Patent Rolls (1216-1575)

[URR K.5.175]

From the thirteenth century, down to the present day, these documents have recorded the issue of royal letters open or 'patent', whereby the sovereign has conferred a privilege or communicated his or her will. Their contents provide key information about government action, intention and patronage, and they embrace a wide and varying range of business.

Calendar of the Fine Rolls (1272-1509)

[URR K.5.153]

The "fines" from which the Fine Rolls takes their name, were payments made for writs, grants, licences, pardons, etc. of various kinds, most of them under the Great Seal, relating to matters in which the Crown had a financial interest. The documents enrolled include writs to inquire post mortem, writs to the Barons of the Exchequer to assign terms for the payment of debts due to the Crown and to cause fines to be taken from prisoners for their release, licences to marry, appointments of sheriffs and other royal officers who would be required to account at the Exchequer, writs to remove causes from inferior tribunals into the King's courts, etc.

Henry III Fine Rolls Project<http://www.finerollshenry3.org.uk/>

Aims to publish all Fine Rolls for the reign of Henry III from 1216 down to 1272 in English calendar format, in both print and electronic form. The fine rolls recorded offers of money to the king for concessions and favours, a fine in a general sense being an agreement made with the king to pay a certain sum of money for a specified benefit.

d. Texts produced by record societies British and foreign, e.g.

Camden Society Publications

[URR K.6.1]

The Camden Society was established in 1838 for the purpose of publishing historical and antiquarian information. The publications are a miscellaneous collection of British historical and antiquarian information. Some items go back as far as 1400. Some examples of materials include "Chronicle of Novgorod 1016-1471."

List of titles is also available online at <http://www.royalhistoricalsociety.org/camden.htm>.

Selden Society PublicationsURR K.6.5 in Hein Online via [OxLIP+]

The Selden Society is the only learned society and publisher devoted entirely to English legal history. Most of the annual volumes consist of original source materials, never before in print: early law reports, courts' records, judges' notebooks, legal treatises, precedent and practice books, and compilations of documents brought together by the Society's editors for the first time. Each volume has the full original text coupled with a modern translation, made as accessible as possible for the modern reader.

List of titles is also available online at http://www.law.harvard.edu/programs/selden_society/pub.html.

Catholic Record Society Publications

[URR K.6.3]

The Society has published a wide range of material illustrating the history and culture of the British Catholics. It has printed articles on recusancy, family history, the education of priests and layfolk, and the liturgy and spirituality of the English Catholics. The records of old Catholic missions and parishes throughout the land as well as the histories of seminaries, colleges, and convents have also been printed. The Society has published the personal letters, diaries and other papers of priests and layfolk, in addition to important pieces on English literature, music, architecture and other aspects of their cultural life.

Medieval Family Life

via [OxLIP+]

The Paston Family Papers have long been a subject of both literary and historical interest. They are Britain's first surviving records of private correspondence, describing everyday life in East Anglia during the Wars of the Roses and the Black Death.

In addition it includes four other valuable collections relating to medieval families in Essex, Oxfordshire, Yorkshire and Warwickshire, c1400-1490.

Available printed transcriptions are full-text searchable and displayed alongside the manuscript images for the very first time. We also include a variety of 'further resources', including family trees, an interactive map and a wide range of outstanding visual sources.

Note: The Bodleian's collections in Celtic studies are supplemented by those held in the Taylor Institute Library.

More an institution than a publication, it is usual not to italicize the title. The society was founded in 1819 as Gesellschaft für ältere deutsche Geschichtskunde; the first volumes to be published were edited at Hanover by G. H. Pertz, royal librarian there, who served an absentee English sovereign, King George IV.

Content: MGH Scriptores, 29 vols in folio (1826–92); Auctores antiquissimi, 15 vols (1877–1919); Scriptores rerum Merovingicarum, 7 vols (1884–1920); Scriptores rerum Germanicarum, 1– (1922–); Scriptores rerum Germanicarum in usum scholarum, 1– (1871–); Poetae Latini, 1– (1881–); &c. &c.

The numerous series of the MGH are generally kept in print, and many volumes are brought up to date with revisions or completely new editions. It remains the outstanding series for the publication of chronicles, laws, letters, and other historical sources, especially for the earlier middle ages. National inventory of documentary sources in the UK & Ireland (NIDS) [microfiches].
(Chadwyck-Healey, 1984). [Weston RBMSS Ask Staff]

NIDS is a major national reference work that reproduces on microfiche the finding aids to thousands of archive and manuscript collections in more than 120 libraries and record offices, museums and private collections throughout the UK and Ireland.

Using NIDS, researchers in their own libraries can pinpoint the collections containing documents of interest to them thereby saving time and money and making visits to repositories much more rewarding. Furthermore, NIDS can also help users uncover neglected resources in collections which are often overlooked.

Aims to provide photographic copies of unprinted lists and indexes kept in the Public Record Office, London, and of other unprinted guides and aids to the use of public archives in the British Isles. Publications include lists, texts, editions and tabulations of historical manuscripts. Also continues publication of some of the key series of government documents, notably the Calendar of Patent Rolls. It is currently publishing transcripts of the medieval customs accounts and calendars of such little known but key series as HO 47, Judges' Reports on Criminals 1783 to 1830. Recent publications include medieval royal witness lists and itineraries, and gazetteers of early Tudor taxation and medieval markets and fairs. Les sources de l'histoire économique et sociale du Moyen âge / par Robert-Henri Bautier et Janine Sornay. 2 vols. (Paris: CNRS, 1968-<1984>) Check [SOLO]

Major source for later medieval economic, social and administrative history of France and the Low Countries, including the possessions of the house of Burgundy. This is a very useful guide to the holdings of a large number of French, Belgian and Dutch archives and goes far beyond the remit suggested by its title.

Paul Oskar Kristeller, Latin manuscript books before 1600. A list of the printed catalogues and unpublished inventories of extant collections. 4th edition, ed. Sigrid Kraemer (Munich, 1993). [Weston Gall. Open Shelves R. Cat. Ref. 22]

What began as separate lists of published and unpublished catalogues in Traditio 6 (1948) 227--317, 9 (1953) 393--418, was expanded, 2nd edition (New York 1960), reprinted with a major supplement (pp. 233--84) as 3rd edition (New York 1965), and is here reset in a much enlarged form. It seeks to be comprehensive, and that is its undoing. Too much information about relatively unimportant lists are included, obscuring what are the major catalogues not only for the big libraries but even in quite small entries. Also lacking is some explanation of the manuscript collections in these libraries, by what names they are known and how they should be cited; without this the manuscript catalogues of libraries such as the BL or Bodleian are all but incomprehensible.

Répertoire des bibliothèques et des catalogues de manuscrits grecs de Marcel Richard. 3rd edition, ed. Jean-Marie Olivier (Turnhout, 1995).

[Weston Gall. Open Shelves R. Cat. Ref. 13]

English Monastic Archives <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/englishmonasticarchives/>

A systematic guide to the types and current locations of documents generated by medieval English monasteries, but not, as a rule, to the information contained within those documents. The database links monastic houses with the manors, churches, chapels and urban property that they owned. This was initially intended as a working tool to enable the researchers to link documents relating to manors, etc., with the religious house that had generated them, whose name might well figure nowhere in the document. The database also records the documents generated by English monastic houses, structuring the data by genre and the other categories.

Institut de Recherche et d'Histoire des Textes <http://www.irht.cnrs.fr/>

The Institute conducts fundamental research on the medieval manuscript and the transmission of medieval texts written in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Arabic, and Old French. The site provides information regarding the institute's activities and publications, a calendar of seminars, conferences and colloquia, access to online searching of its library catalogue, a listing of available electronic resources, and information on courses of interest. Under the News section, a number of recent projects and their websites are also listed, including 'Enluminure' (a database of images from the medieval manuscripts held in the French libraries), and 'Liber Floridus' (a database of illuminated manuscripts from French university libraries). This website is of particular interest to researchers of the medieval manuscript book.
